

living the promise through our connectional

GIVING

Equitable Compensation

Why should you care about the Equitable Compensation line in the conference budget?

Your support of the Commission on Equitable Compensation ensures that full-time clergy receive fair and consistent base compensation across the Annual Conference, regardless of the church's size or local wealth.

Supporting this line item is a direct way to care for clergy and their families by protecting them from financial instability and honoring their calling.

living the promise
through our connectional

GIVING

Equitable Compensation

Why should you care about the Equitable Compensation line in the conference budget?

Your support of the Commission on Equitable Compensation ensures that full-time clergy receive fair and consistent base compensation across the Annual Conference, regardless of the church's size or local wealth.

Supporting this line item is a direct way to care for clergy and their families by protecting them from financial instability and honoring their calling.

The commission recommends modest cost of living adjustments that align with inflation trends and Social Security benchmarks. This helps clergy maintain basic living standards and reflects a commitment to economic justice within the church's own system.

Your apportionment supports faithful ministry where it would not otherwise be possible. You also contribute to a strong, healthy connectional system that shares responsibility and mission.

Learn more about how our apportionment giving connects us at umcsc.org/giving.

The commission recommends modest cost of living adjustments that align with inflation trends and Social Security benchmarks. This helps clergy maintain basic living standards and reflects a commitment to economic justice within the church's own system.

Your apportionment supports faithful ministry where it would not otherwise be possible. You also contribute to a strong, healthy connectional system that shares responsibility and mission.

Learn more about how our apportionment giving connects us at umcsc.org/giving.